

mission·ar·y

1. a person sent by a church into an area to carry on evangelism or other activities, such as educational or hospital work.

For centuries churches have invested in missionaries with both their finances and their prayers.

Christian Educators Association International (CEAI) and churches across this nation recognize the educators in their pews as missionaries.

Although they may not enter foreign lands as traditional missionaries do, educators are daily entering a culture that is often foreign to the principles of our faith as made clear in Scripture.

Total cultures have been transformed by our missionaries in the past. We believe that God will transform our schools as we reach out and commit to the concept of NO CHILD OF GOD LEFT BEHIND.

CEAI is here to help!

Christian Educators Association International can help your church make a meaningful contribution to education in your community.

Congregational Partnerships

Christian Educators Association International partners with local churches to affirm the role of educators as missionaries in our public and private schools.

Through Congregational Partnerships, churches provide encouraging support for their educators. Such a partnership allows all educators who are members of the church to become members of CEAI at no cost to them and to take advantage of services that ENCOURAGE, EQUIP and EMPOWER them to make a positive impact in their school. This allows churches to support their own members and expand a positive impact on public and private schools across America. We suggest that churches make the cost* of the Congregational Memberships part of their missions budget.

CEAI at Work

CEAI is a Christian Professional Association of educators who share the desire to impact others with God's love. Since 1953 CEAI has fulfilled it's mission through:

Valuable resource materials for teachers, including tips on how to inform students of the Judeo-Christian contributions to our government, society and culture.

Referral services on legal issues and information on educational matters such as curricula, school board policies and other educational related topics.

TIPPs (Teaching in Private and Public Schools) nationwide radio spots

Dialogue with churches on educational, legal and spiritual issues of importance to teachers, school administrators and parents.

Educators Sunday, an annual church and community event to honor educators.

Appearances on national and local radio and television programs as a voice for the Christian community's educational concerns.

Contact with key governmental organizations, including the U.S. Dept. of Education and the White House.

Print media contributions across America through press releases, letters to the editor, interviews and articles.

Speakers bureau for school, church and community events.
